

Social Security Disability Insurance and Unemployment Benefits Double Dip Elimination Act of 2013 (H.R. 1502)

The Social Security Disability Insurance and Unemployment Benefits Double Dip Elimination Act of 2013 introduced by Ways and Means Social Security Subcommittee Chairman Sam Johnson, would end the ability to double dip by receiving Social Security disability benefits and unemployment benefits at the same time and preserves Social Security benefits for only those who truly cannot work.

Background

- The Federal-State Unemployment Insurance (UI) program assists unemployed individuals by offering weekly unemployment benefit checks while they search for work. In order to be eligible for benefits, jobless workers must have a history of attachment to the workforce and must be able and available for work.
- Trade Adjustment Assistance for Workers (TAA) provides federally funded benefits to dislocated workers who have lost their jobs due to foreign trade, primarily reemployment services and income support for workers who have exhausted their UI benefits.
- To qualify for Social Security Disability Insurance (DI) benefits, a person must be unable to engage in substantial gainful activity (having earnings which signify the ability to work, $1040 in 2013), due to a medically determinable impairment which is expected to last 12 months or result in death.
- Under current law, a person can receive UI benefits (the level of work activity used to establish disability) while also receiving DI benefits (and therefore be unable to work).
- Beginning in 2016, the DI program will only be able to pay 79 percent of promised benefits unless Congress acts.

Findings of the recent Government Accountability Office (GAO) Report¹

- In fiscal year 2010, at least 117,000 individuals received concurrent DI and UI benefits, representing less than 1 percent of total beneficiaries of both programs.
- The GAO estimates the overlapping cash benefits paid to these individuals totaled over $281 million from DI and more than $575 million from UI.
- These concurrent cash benefit payments made to individuals on both programs are an overlapping replacement of their lost earnings, according to GAO.

The President's Proposal

- In the President's budget, he proposed reducing the DI benefit in any month UI benefits are also received, in order to eliminate the concurrent benefit payment.
 - Estimated 10 year savings: $1 billion

Social Security Disability Insurance and Unemployment Benefits Double Dip Elimination Act of 2013

- Effective after December 2013, for individuals applying for DI benefits and receiving unemployment benefits (UI or TAA), they are deemed to be engaging in substantial gainful activity and are therefore ineligible for DI benefits.
- For current beneficiaries, any month during which unemployment benefits are received will count as a Trial Work Period month. The Trial Work Period allows DI beneficiaries to test their ability to work for 9 months without fear of losing benefits.
- 10-year savings according to CBO preliminary estimate: $5.4 billion
